i won't even bother debunking weidner's moon-landing thesis, which fails in exactly the same way as all other paranoid conspiracy theories.

in this case, the higher lime rate appears as the recommendation for the first crop.

faced with difficulties improving alcohol impairment, the various states simply passed so-called "per se" laws; laws which made having .08 of alcohol in the blood while driving a crime.